Cookie policy

Website wording reviewed: 3 November 2026

About cookies and similar technologies

Cookies are small files stored on your device. Similar technologies include local storage and other ways of storing or accessing information in your browser. Some support a function you request; others are optional.

This policy explains the technologies used on Plymouth Motor Club's website. It should be read alongside our privacy policy. UK cookie rules are principally contained in the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations (PECR). Where personal information is involved, the UK GDPR and Data Protection Act 2018 also apply.

Your choices

You can choose Accept all, Reject optional services, or Choose services in the privacy banner. Optional services are off until you allow them. You can continue browsing without accepting them, although the relevant embedded content or external fonts will not load.

Use Privacy Settings in the footer to review or change your choices. Use Revoke Consents to withdraw optional consent. Withdrawal stops future use controlled by the banner; it does not undo processing that has already happened or automatically remove information held by another provider.

You can delete existing cookies and site storage through your browser settings. Blocking essential technologies may prevent sign-in, preference storage or a requested payment from working. You do not need to accept optional services to contact the club.

Your optional website-service choices are separate from applying for club membership, entering an event or choosing to receive marketing. Accepting or rejecting optional website services does not itself submit an application or change your club membership.

Essential technologies

Real Cookie Banner remembers your privacy choices and records consent decisions. Its records include a consent reference, the choices made, the time and the banner configuration. They may also include technical information needed to document the decision, such as browser and display information. The privacy-choice cookie is configured to last up to one year; a change to the services or settings may require a new choice sooner.

WordPress uses authentication and security cookies when you sign in and may remember account interface preferences. These support registered users and authorised administration; they are not advertising cookies. Their lifetime depends on the cookie and your sign-in choices.

Stripe provides secure card fields and payment-security checks on payment forms. Its fraud-prevention technology may include __stripe_mid and __stripe_sid cookies. These support a payment you request. Stripe explains its payment technologies in its privacy centre. The payment forms on this review website use Stripe test mode; use test card details only.

Optional external services

Google Fonts: supplies the externally hosted fonts used by the site. Loading a font connects your browser to Google and discloses technical information such as your IP address. Google states that the Fonts API does not set cookies. If you decline, available fallback fonts are used.

YouTube: supplies embedded videos, including the Werrington course video. When you allow a video, your browser connects to Google/YouTube. The provider may use cookies or other storage for playback, preferences, security and its own service purposes. Information may be associated with a Google account if you are signed in. See Google’s privacy policy.

MemberMojo: supplies the embedded membership application. Allowing the embed connects your browser to MemberMojo and allows its application to load. MemberMojo uses technologies to maintain sessions and preferences, and may use payment or security providers during its own application process. You can instead use the separate application or sign-in link. See MemberMojo’s privacy policy and cookie information.

Privacy Settings provides the configured service details and lets you select the optional services individually. Providers can change their technologies; their own notices explain their current practices.

Analytics, social links and overseas processing

This website does not use Google Analytics. Ordinary links and share buttons for Facebook, WhatsApp, Instagram or other websites are not embedded social-media feeds. Following a link or choosing a sharing destination takes you to that provider, whose own privacy arrangements apply.

Some external providers operate internationally. For example, Google/YouTube and Stripe may process information outside the UK, including in the United States. Their notices describe their processing locations and transfer arrangements. The club's privacy policy explains how to request further information. Accepting an optional website service is not a blanket agreement to every overseas transfer.

Children and young people

If you are under 13, ask a parent or guardian to help with optional privacy choices. You can browse with optional services switched off. A banner message does not verify parental authorisation.

The UK age rule for a child's own consent applies to certain online services offered directly to children where consent is the lawful basis. It is not a minimum age for club membership, marshalling or competition. Separate parent or guardian requirements for club activities still apply.
