About this website

This website is provided by Plymouth Motor Club Limited (company number 01368913), referred to here as the club. It shares information about the club, its activities, publications and events. These terms apply to use of the website. They do not replace membership terms, event regulations, entry conditions, ticket terms or any other conditions supplied for a particular activity.

Using the website

Please use the website lawfully and respect other people's rights. Do not use it to send abusive, fraudulent, misleading or unsolicited messages, introduce malicious software, disrupt the service or attempt to access accounts, systems or information without permission. You may link to public pages provided the link is accurate and does not falsely suggest the club endorses you or your activities.

Respectful participation

Please follow the principles of respect, integrity, fair play, self-control and good manners when contacting the club or contributing material through its website. Members' online activity is also covered by the Membership Rules. The Social Media Policy explains expectations for the club's social channels. These website terms do not replace either document or the official rules for an event.

Accounts and information you provide

If you have a website account, keep your sign-in details private and use only the tools and information you are authorised to access. Provide accurate information when completing forms, and tell the club if you suspect an account has been misused. The club may restrict website access where reasonably necessary to protect the service, investigate misuse or meet its obligations. A website access decision does not itself change club membership or any separate right to take part in an event.

Events, entries and results

Dates, venues, fees, entry availability and arrangements can change. Before entering, travelling or taking part, check the latest event information and applicable official regulations, and ask the organiser if anything is unclear. Sending an enquiry or completing a registration form does not itself confirm membership, an accepted event entry or a ticket booking: follow the confirmation arrangements stated for that service. Published results do not replace the relevant official enquiry, correction or appeal procedure.

Archives and historical material

Historic reports, results, photographs and Spotlamp issues are retained for reference and club heritage. They may describe people, contact details, rules, prices or arrangements that are no longer current. Use current notices and policies when making decisions about a forthcoming activity.

Copyright, photographs and publications

Rights in text, photographs, logos, video and other material remain with the club or the relevant rights holders. Material being available on the website does not mean it is free to republish or use commercially. Respect credits, copyright notices and any licence or permission stated with an item. Where permission is unclear, contact the club before reusing material, particularly photographs, book extracts, logos and magazine articles. Nothing here removes uses permitted by applicable law. To raise a rights concern, send the page address, identify the material and explain your concern so the club can investigate.

External websites and services

Some links and forms connect to organisations such as membership, payment, results and social-media providers. Their own terms and privacy information apply when you use their services. The club does not control the content or availability of an external website. A link is not a guarantee of everything published there. This does not remove any responsibility the club has for its own activities or transactions.

Privacy and cookies

Our Privacy Policy explains how personal information is handled. Our Cookie Policy explains website services and privacy choices. You can change optional consent choices using Privacy Settings in the footer. These terms do not replace either policy, and browsing the website is not treated as consent to optional cookies or services.

Availability, accuracy and your rights

The club aims to keep information useful and accurate, but errors can occur, content can become outdated and access may be interrupted for maintenance or other reasons. Please report errors or broken links through the Contact page. Nothing in these terms excludes or limits liability for death or personal injury caused by negligence, fraud or fraudulent misrepresentation, or any other liability that cannot lawfully be excluded or limited. Your statutory rights are unaffected.

Changes and contact

The club may update these terms as the website and its services develop. The date at the top identifies the latest revision; updates do not retrospectively change a separate membership, entry or purchase agreement. For questions about website use, content permissions or these terms, use the Contact page or email enquiries@plymouthmotorclub.co.uk.

For a concern about website operation or content, use the Contact page. For a member-conduct complaint, follow the reporting arrangements in the Membership Rules. Safeguarding concerns should follow the existing safeguarding reporting arrangements. Restricting website access does not by itself decide a person’s club membership or replace the club’s disciplinary and appeal procedures.
